This document lists basic characters that are confused with combining characters (generated using combining characters (U+0653 – U+065E)). Combining marks are known as “Non-spacing marks”, which is defined as: “A combining character with the General Category of Nonspacing Mark (Mn) or Enclosing Mark (Me). The position of a nonspacing mark in presentation depends on its base character. It generally does not consume space along the visual baseline in and of itself.” Glossary of Unicode Terms (<http://unicode.org/glossary/>).

Some of these combining characters are handled by the Unicode normalization process and some are not!
